The book under review is to be welcomed as containing a clear analysis of recent amendments brought out in the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 by the Negotiable Instruments (Amendment and Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 2002 [Act No.55 of 2002] w.e.f. 6-2-2003. The First Edition of the book was brought out in the year 2000 (and reprinted in 2001) and the present edition is only in time. Apart from the significant statutory development in between the period of these two editions, the accumulations of cases decided by various High Courts and the Supreme Court touching upon the subject matter of the book, necessitated a thorough review of the existing entries and investigation into all new case in the light of changed position of Law.

The present edition in many places, has been recast and largely re-written in view of changed position of law and in order to enhance its utility from all possible points of view. The scheme and arrangement of the different parts of the book are well conceived. The usual treatment of commentary on the sections of the Act seriatim has been abandoned in favour of a scientific treatment, which must commend itself.

A cursory glance at the commentaries is bound to reveal the great care and thought bestowed in revising the work with a view to its practical utility. The commentaries are analytical and critical, embodying the diversity of judicial opinion wherever it exists. Each provision has been explained and a concise and clear statement has been given of its import and effect. The case law, brought up almost upto the date of the publication, has been well sifted and arranged under proper headings. The allied principles of law having bearing on the subject matter have been stated logically and with clearness, aptly supported by leading and important cases which are also fully discussed. The attempt of the author is to provide compact and complete treatise on the subject matter. The other noteworthy feature of this edition is the full, intensive and extensive, but precise indexing. To facilitate easy and quick location of desired entries a parallel index running through the first to the last page of the book has been provided with a unique Chapter map wherever found necessary.

The single volume comprising of over 2000 pages bear ample guide of the great labour and time spent in making the book thorough, exhaustive and critical. The book is no doubt a repository of much information relating to the subject matter and will be found a useful guide on the subject matter. Moderately priced at Rs.1050 and with attractive jacket, good print and get up, this library edition is sure to prove extremely useful and colar to the needs of the Bench, the Bar as also the litigant public trying to acquaint themselves with the intricate subject.

This Book has been written by Sri. K.V. Ramana Rao, Advocate who has immense experience as the author of several law books and also at present the Chief Editor of Andhra Legal Decisions, a premier Law Journal in the State of Andhra Pradesh.

In this book the author has dealt with all the provisions in the Hyderabad Municipal Corporations Act, giving exhaustive case law. The Act as amended upto date is given along with all Rules and Notifications issued thereunder. He has also included the Visakhapatnam Municipal Corporations Act, 1979, Vijayawada Municipal Corporations Act, 1981 along with Andhra Pradesh Municipal Corporations Act, 1994. All the Rules and Notifications issued under the above three Acts are also included in the above book to make it a comprehensive one. A fairly exhaustive index is also given at the end.

This edition is well appreciated by the Bench and Bar. The author has to be congratulated for bringing out this book. The book has been printed neatly. Undoubtedly this publication will be of utmost to use not only to the Bench and the Bar but also to the officers entrusted with the implementation of the provisions of the Acts.
